

Cable tray cover plate shape and price

AI Overview

Cable tray covers come in various shapes—flat, flanged, hat-shaped, ventilated, peaked, and hinged—with prices ranging from around $30 to over $600 depending on material, size, and design.

Common Shapes

- Flat Covers: Simple, economical covers suitable for straight sections; can be plain or with flanges for better sealing in clean environments.
- Flanged Covers: Flat covers with 3/8" flanges to improve sealing and prevent dust ingress, often used in data centers or clean rooms.
- Hat-Shaped (Dome) Covers: Designed to protect cables that extend above tray flanges and deflect falling debris; available in solid or ventilated tops.
- Ventilated Covers: Feature perforations or mesh to allow airflow, ideal for heat dissipation in high-density cabling.
- Peaked or Corrugated Covers: Used outdoors to shed snow or water; corrugation adds structural strength without much weight.
- Hinged Covers: Allow quick access for maintenance; often combined with flanges for sealing.

Materials

- Galvanized Steel: Medium corrosion resistance, cost-effective, suitable for warehouses or low-risk environments.
- Aluminum: Lightweight, moderate corrosion resistance, often used in data centers or rooftops.
- Stainless Steel 304/316: High corrosion resistance, suitable for food, pharmaceutical, marine, or chemical environments.
- FRP (Fiberglass): Lightweight, corrosion-resistant, used in offshore or chemical plants.
- PVC-Coated or HDGAF Steel: Optional for additional chemical or environmental protection.

Price Range

- Budget Covers: Small wire mesh or basic flat covers start around $30–$60 per piece (e.g., Cablofil Clipfo2pg at $32.93, Kable Kontrol 12" mesh cover at $28.26).
- Mid-Range Covers: Solid or ventilated covers for standard trays range from $90–$350 depending on width and length (e.g., Cablofil CVN 300PG at $139.04, MP Husky 24" flanged cover at $140.88).
- Premium Covers: Stainless steel or large-width covers can exceed $500–$600 (e.g., Cablofil CAB CVN150IN316L at $606.13, B-Line 807A-12-120 solid cover at $396.00).

Selection Considerations

- Environment: Corrosive, outdoor, or high...
