

Croatian Power Fiber Optic Cable Fittings Factory

AI Overview

ELEKTRO IMBER and Telecron are key Croatian companies providing fiber optic cable fittings and related infrastructure solutions. ELEKTRO IMBER Ltd specializes in optical communications and fiber network deployment across Croatia, offering end-to-end solutions from planning and design to full implementation of fiber networks. Their product range includes: Fiber optic distribution boxes and optical splitter boxes, Terminal boxes and splice closures, Optical cross-connect boxes (cabinets), Patch cords, pigtails, and fiber optic connectors, Adapters and preconnectorized drop cables. They use G.657.A2 fiber for patchcords and pigtails, allowing low bending radius for easier installation in complex environments. ELEKTRO IMBER also customizes patchcord lengths and connector types to meet specific network deployment needs. Their expertise supports FTTH, FTTB, FTTP, FTTN, and FTTC deployments, making them a comprehensive provider for passive fiber optic elements. Telecron d.o.o. Founded in 1991, Telecron operates in the telecom, network, and IT sectors, distributing fiber optic equipment and installation tools. Their offerings include: Fiber optic blowing machines and fusion splicers, Cable pulling systems, grips, and drum handling tools, Fiber optic launch cables, OTDRs, power meters, and identifiers, Splicing, stripping, and termination tools, Connectors, adapters, and inspection equipment. Telecron focuses on both fiber optic and power cable laying, providing tools and accessories for installation, testing, and maintenance of optical networks. They also supply professional AV and communication solutions, complementing their fiber optic infrastructure services. Additional Providers Other companies in Croatia, such as Dark Fiber and distributors like Mouser Electronics, offer fiber optic components, wholesale connectivity solutions, and specialized mea...
