

Mauritius-style cable trays

AI Overview

Mauritius offers a variety of cable trays, including hot-dip galvanized steel, PVC, and modular systems, with suppliers catering to industrial, commercial, and infrastructure projects. Market Overview The cable tray market in Mauritius is growing steadily due to infrastructure development, industrial expansion, and modernization projects. Demand is driven by energy projects, commercial real estate, telecommunications, and renewable energy installations such as solar and wind farms. Urban centers like Port Louis and industrial zones are the primary demand hubs, though projects are expanding across the island. Key trends include the use of corrosion-resistant materials, modular designs for faster installation, and fire-retardant coatings meeting BS 476 standards. Types of Cable Trays Hot-Dip Galvanized (HDG) Perforated Steel Trays: These trays are treated with a hot-dip galvanizing process, offering superior anti-corrosion protection compared to standard galvanizing. They provide good heat dissipation, dustproofing, and signal interference reduction, making them suitable for control, communication, and power cables in industries like real estate, chemical, electricity, oil, and telecommunications. PVC Cable Trays: Lightweight and corrosion-resistant, PVC trays are ideal for environments where chemical resistance and electrical insulation are important. They are commonly used in commercial and industrial installations. Modular and Prefabricated Systems: These systems allow faster installation and easier maintenance, increasingly preferred in modern construction and high-tech facilities. Suppliers in Mauritius MRC Wire Products Ltd: Established in 1975, part of the Desbro Group, offering a range of cable management solutions including cable trays. Brikonek: Provides hot-dip galvanized perforated cable trays suitable for various industrial applications. Legrand Mauritius: Offers PVC cable trays and other conduit solutions for commercial and industrial projects. Trademo and Accio Platforms: Provide directories of manufacturers, suppliers, and...
