

Specifications of Ladder Cable Tray Supports

AI Overview

Ladder cable trays are prefabricated support systems designed to carry and manage electrical cables, available in metallic and non-metallic materials, with specifications covering material composition, load capacity, dimensions, fire resistance, and installation standards.

Material and Construction

Metallic Ladder Trays: Typically constructed from 16-gauge steel tubing or high-strength welded steel wires, providing mechanical support and strain relief for long cable runs. They are available in gray or black finishes to complement equipment in data centers or industrial settings and may include conductive resin systems for static dissipation when required.

Non-Metallic Ladder Trays: Often made from fiberglass reinforced plastic (FRP) using pultrusion, compression molding, or resin transfer molding. Glass fiber content ranges from 45–65% by weight in pultruded components, with UV inhibitors and fire retardant additives to achieve a Class 1 Flame Spread Rating (≤ 25 per ASTM E-84). Surfaces are coated for chemical and UV protection, and conductive resins may be used for static dissipation.

Dimensions and Load Ratings

Nominal loading depths: 2" (51 mm), 3" (76 mm), 5" (127 mm), 7" (178 mm), 9" (229 mm) for non-metallic trays.

Rung spacing: Standard 9.25 inches for fittings and straight sections.

Load vs. span: Safe Working Load (SWL) is determined per IEC 61537, with maximum deflection measured at mid-span. Continuous spans may allow higher load ratings.

Side heights: Available in multiple heights to accommodate different cable volumes.

Fittings and Accessories

Fittings are prefabricated and pre-drilled to accept connector plates. Rung-to-side member connections use mechanical and/or chemical locks, often with fiberglass reinforced thermoplastic locking pins or stainless-steel rivets. Modular systems allow mounting to floors, walls, ceilings, equipment racks, a...
